

LinkiBag: A Revolutionary Solution for Saving and Sharing Links on the Fly, Goes Live with Beta Version

(October 12, 2020) – LinkiBag, the new way to save and share web links, is now live in the US with the Beta launch of the online link-sharing portal!

Thanks to LinkiBag, web users now have a handy tool for saving important web links and sharing them conveniently with their friends, workmates or students. Now you'll have a central location to save all your important links and access them from any device that can browse the internet.

LinkiBag's service is 100% web-based and requires no software downloads or installations. User's only need to log in to access saved or shared web links. The service – an all-in-one solution for storing and exchanging links – is completely free for individual users. LinkiBag is targeting a diverse userbase with its wide range of applications from work to education to business and everything in between. With the standard free account, users can save, sort into categories, and share their favorite links (with comments) with anyone they want – either via email or through a LinkiBag Instant Share ID. LinkiBag's sorting feature is especially useful as it enables users to organize their links into categories for easier access.

Conveniently shared links can be used for co-working assignments, class lectures and tutorials, or simply to share a recipe or humorous article with a pal. And for when you need to share multiple links, LinkiBooks will prove handy. With LinkiBooks, a nifty feature available on the platform, you're able to create a collection of links with accompanying comments and share them in one convenient package.

"We're changing the way web users save and exchange links, while helping them build up a personalized web-based repository of web references for their future use. LinkiBag's mission is to be the best place to keep your links. We are very excited to launch the Beta version of LinkiBag in the US. Now it's upon you to pack your links and get going!" LinkiBag's spokesperson said.

The platform is an invaluable time-saving tool for the frequent web user who can now save, share and access their favorite weblinks anywhere and anytime. Get your free LinkiBag account today and manage your links like never before!
